The Lesson of the Day.

The old adage, that "The gods help them who help themselves," is true in all cases. As true of a church as of an individual—as true of a city or town as of a family. One of the greatest blessthat ever came on man, town or Neither this cor any other city ever can rise above the mere reputation of being a "good, quiet place, and then have that laurel torn away by the verdict that there is no public spirit, unless we put ourseles to the front. To say to the farmers around us, come to our town and buy our goods, but bring your water along for yourself and team, will never bring population or increased business to our city-it is but a question of time until they will not only go to those towns that give them these facilities, but will become fast friends to those towns, and the unwavering ene mies of the town that treat them and their trade with such indifference.

The great educating powers of society are not alone the public schools no churches, but the enterprising spirit that secures them and all enterprises that help to develop our city-The standing still, do-nothing policy is not only a menace to our social fabric, but will, in time prove a cancer that will ultimately eat out our vitals - decay, rot, death will follow. If ten per cent of the capital that has gone out from Oregon, that legitimately belonged to her, to help build up and develop other cities and towre, had been invested by ber capitalists in water works, motor railway, electric lights, etc., they would be able no doubt to look upon a city today of 1500 or 2000 souls-But they have nursed the milk from the breast then stabbed it because it would give Oregon has set quietly down and gone to sleep - She awakee and finds her sister city of Mound increased in population from 678 in 1880 to 1193 in 1890, and 1500 in 1895. She finds that in 1870 Oregon had 824 people and 1016 in 1895-an increase of 192 in twenty-five years. She finds that her sister city of Mantland started out in 1980 with 257 population and had grown to 484 in 1890 and to 725 in 1895. What is the cause of this? Simply this-our sister cities use their own capital and all they can get on the outside toward developing their own town, while Oregon sends her capital away instead of using it home for home development.

This is all wrong, and one which sooner or later will destroy our beautiful little city. It is true that our capitalists can reduce their beautiful homes to ashee, put their wealth into the future Late are in good demandtheir grips and go hence, but is it right? Forest City was the center of attraction on December 7th and 8th. The Endeavor societies of the county union had sent their delegates and an excellent programme had been made out. The good people of Forest City extended royal entertainment to all and the best of interest and good feeling prevailed and enthusiasm for the spread of the work. At 7:30 the house was called to order by the county president, G. W. Murphy, and the opening song by the congregation was followed by a prayer, by the president for the success of the convention.
